THE following Address from the Borough of Bodmin, in the County of Cornwall, was presented to his Majesty by the Honourable Francis Robartes, Esq; and John Leigh, Esq; their Representatives in Parliament, introduced by the Right Honourable the Earl of Radnor, Lord-Lieutenant, and Custos Rotulorum of the said County.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty.
The humble Address of the Mayor, Town-Clerk, Aldermen, and the rest of the Corporation of the Ancient Borough of Bodmin, in the County of Cornwall.

WE are so justly sensible of the great and many Blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's most Gracious Government, in having our Religion, Laws, and Liberties so well secured to us, that as Protestants and Englishmen, we cannot desire more to complete our Happiness, or to engage us farther in an Interest so much to our own Advantage, against the Pretender and all his Adherents, both at Home and Abroad.

We do, with humble Submission, take it for granted, that the Principles of Men are best discovered by their Practices: 'tis therefore with the utmost Detestation that we abhor these tumultuous and traitorous Riots committed of late by turbulent and seditious Men, who disturb the Peace of your Government, turn Religion into Rebellion, and Faith into Faction: We doubt not but your Majesty's Hands will be strengthened to cut off such Workers of Iniquity, so as they may never prevail against us, or triumph in the Ruin of the best Constitution in the World.

When we consider your Majesty's consummate Wisdom, and the Loyalty and Zeal of your Parliament, it encourages us, among the rest of your faithful Subjects, to use our utmost Endeavours in assisting your Majesty against all your Enemies, however distinguished, at the Expence of our Fortunes, and the Hazard of our Lives.

That your Majesty may enjoy a long and Glorious Reign, that all your Subjects may be dear to you, and in Addition as well as in Duty to your Majesty: and that the Throne of these Realms may be always filled with a Prince of your Royal Line, till Time shall be no more, are and shall be the constant Prayers of us, &c.

The following Address from the Borough of Hindon, in the County of Wilts, was presented to his Majesty the 2d Instant, by George Wade, Esq; one of their Representatives in Parliament, introduced by the Right Honourable Mr. Secretary Stanhope.

To the King's most Excellent Majesty.
The humble Address of the Bailiff and Inhabitants of the Borough of Hindon, in the County of Wilts.

WE your Majesty's most Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, humbly beg Leave to express your sacred Majesty, with Hearts full of Zeal for the Interest of your Majesty and your Royal Progeny, in Opposition to all Popish Pretenders whatsoever, and their Adherents.

We cannot but with utmost Detestation and Abhorrence, see our deluded Countrymen, led into the late Frenzy and tumultuous Rebellions, in favour of a Set of Men who are charged with the guilt of Crimes that Mankind can possibly be guilty of (that of betraying their Country,) whose Flight from the Justice of a Prince so eminently celebrated for Clemency and impartial Justice, must argue their Guilt in the strongest Terms: Should these Proceedings prove successful (which God avert) the Consequences can be no less than a total Subversion of the Protestant Religion, and our Liberties.

We cannot so soon forget the many Providential Deliverances this Nation has been blessed with from Popery and Arbitrary Power, nor the late Great Instrument of our Glorious Deliverer King William, to whom we owe our present Happiness under your Majesty's most just and wise Administration.

People that would but look back to those Times, when at one View, see the dismal Circumstances we were then delivered out of, and that they would now meddle into under a Popish Enslaving Government, and would then awake out of their intoxicating Dreams of Golden Days, in such a Tyrannical Reign, as they must expect under a Popish Government, as the Pretender has been.

For the same reason, we pray your Majesty to be pleased to give us, may bless us with a long and happy Reign, and that your Majesty's happy Reign may be long and happy.

and that our Posterity may not whilst this World shall have a Being, want one of your Majesty's Royal Offspring to fill the Throne of these Realms, endued with the same benign Vertues your Majesty enjoys, shall ever be our most fervent Prayers and utmost Endeavours.

London, September 5. 1715.

On Saturday arrived a Mail from France, and from the Gazette a la Main.

Paris, Sept. 11. Letters from Toulon of the 26th inst. say, that a Ship arrived from Genoa reports, that the Republick have forbid all Commerce with the Dutchy of Milan, by reason of a Sickness that reigns there, and has carried off a great many People, especially at the City of Milan: That all the Ships returned from the Expedition to Majorca are disarmed, and the Artillery and Ammunition they brought back is deposited in the Magazines: The Stamen also are dismissed for six Months. 'Tis still said that the Ships which have been fitted out in that Port, are designed to carry back the Persian Ambassador. The last Letters from Venice say, that they had Advice by a Ship come from the Levant, that the Turks have taken Napoli di Romania, after divers furious and bloody Assaults: But this needs Confirmation. Letters from Brest of the 2d Instant relate, that four Ships richly laden from the South-Sea are arrived there: And that five Ships are arrived at Port-Louis, and two at St. Malo, from Brazil, with a great Quantity of Merchandize on board, among the rest a great deal of Sugar.

The young King did not come to this City on Saturday last as was expected: All things were prepared at the Parliament for his Reception, and all the Household Troops were in Arms, but they were countermanded by reason of a slight Indisposition of the King, and especially because of the bad Weather: So that his coming to the Parliament is put off to another Day. Last Monday his Majesty went from Versailles to the Castle of Vincennes, he was at two in the Afternoon, and passed round the Bulwarks without entering the City, it being not thought convenient for him to come that Day into the Parliament, lest the great Crowd of People might disorder his Health: But 'tis said he will come next Week. He was in a Coach, accompanied with the Duke of Orleans and the Dutchess de Vantadour, who held him in her Lap. This Prince will be six Years old the 9th of February next: He is very handsome and well made, of large Stature, Brown, has a fine Countenance, good Eyes, but a little Pale. He has very much the Air of the late King his Grandfather.

The Corps of his late Majesty was carried the following Night to St. Denis with a very fine Funeral Pomp: It set out from Versailles at 9 in the Evening, and arrived at St. Denis at 9 the next Morning: The Train was so long that it was above an Hour and Half passing by. It may be said that a finer has never been seen. The Concourse of People to see the Shew was so great that 'tis judged above 60000 People were at it.

M. the Duke of Orleans begins already to give Fruits of his Regency, and the People have great Hopes of the Benefits of his Government: Before he was acknowledged Regent, he had already given Orders for the Good of the State: And although Money is very scarce, he found a Millions to pay the Troops, especially those in the Frontier Places: And has formed great Projects for reducing the Expence of the King's Household, and other things; as, by putting off 900 of the Horses in the great and little Stables, suppressing 25 Stages of a Horses each, dismissing two thirds of the Musick, and reducing them to 36. He retrenches also the Expence of the Machine of Marly, which amounted to 80000 Livres, and is reduced to 30000: In sum, that he will save, as 'tis said, 23 or 30 Millions. He applies himself to the Means of making Money circulate and Trade flourish again; and will revert near 60 Millions of Pensions that were paid to Strangers and at Home. He has called home many State Criminals that were in Exile, and has called to Court the Bishops of Chalons, Metz, Bologne, and others, who were forbid to come to Paris. 'Tis said he has demanded of the Count de Pontchartrain a Copy of all the Privy-Seals he has given. Since the King's Death there is no more talk of the Constitution.

The Dutchess of Berry is coming to live at the Palace of Luxemburg in this City, and has dismissed all of her Horses. The Duke of Orleans will reside at Berry as long as the Court is at Versailles.
